

FIVE FAMILY VALUES

Your Family's Story

- Personal growth is important.
- What we model is more important to our children than what we say
- Evaluate your family in the areas of faith, marriage and family relationships. What is your highest ranking value?

Fight For The Heart

- Culture of unconditional love in your home.
- Heart connections build relationships.
- Family legacy is transferred relationally.

Widen The Circle

- Inviting others to intentionally partner with you to have other voices helping to shape and determine the direction of our marriages and parenting.
- Parents should pursue strategic relationships for their kids.
- Become a valuable contributor to someone else's circle of influence.

Create A Rhythm

- Much of our everyday life seems to function in a fairly steady rhythm.
- Families want to tap into the power of quality moments together.
- Build a sense of purpose through everyday experiences.

Imagine The End

- Focus your energy and effort on the issues that will have a lasting impact.
- As parents, in the end, the most important thing is our child's relationship with God.
- We must be intentional each day about what is most important.
